

Tuesday, February 14, 2012 • School of Law, Room 101

The University of Montana School of Law and the Center for Natural Resources & Environmental Policy

present

The Great Northern Landscape Conservation Cooperative:

A Collective Vision for our Landscape

with Yvette Converse
U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service

Upcoming lectures:

- Thursday, March 22, 7 p.m. in Urey Lecture Hall: Ian Stirling, Canadian polar bear biologist, "The Ecology of Polar Bears, Climate Warming, and the Effects on Human-Polar Bear Interactions" (in cooperation with the fourth International Human-Bear Conflicts Workshop)
- Tuesday, April 10, Noon in the Law Building Room 101: Chris Smith, natural resource policy expert with the Wildlife Management Institute, "From Ancient Rome to the Ruby River: Why the Public Trust Doctrine Matters to You"

The forum series is convened by the U.M. Center for Natural Resources and Environmental Policy, in cooperation with the College of Forestry and Conservation, School of Law, Bolle Center for People and Forests, Resource Conservation Program, Environmental Studies Program, Department of Geography, Department of History/HD Hampton Lecture and the Indian Land Tenure Foundation.

For more information, please visit umt.edu/law or contact Sarah Bates, UM Center for Natural Resources and Environmental Policy at 406.207.9071

