ADVISING NOTES – STANDARDS AND GUIDELINES

The recording of accurate advising notes after meeting with a student is considered “best practice” in academic advising. A history of the information discussed will assist advisors who work with the student in the future. In addition, if a dispute should occur in the future about a previous advising encounter, the advising notes will serve as documentation of the advice given to the student. Advising notes can assist the advisor in keeping track of the advising learning outcomes the student has mastered. These notes are considered part of a student’s educational record. Therefore, students can obtain copies if they request. The advising notes should always DESCRIBE the meeting with the student, but should not be written as an evaluation of the advising session.

Examples of appropriate and inappropriate notes follow.

1. Include notes that will help the student.
   - Student should remember to take Math placement exam prior to registration Spring semester.
   - Asked student to bring list of possible courses for next semester to our advising session.
