III. Description and purpose of the course: General Education courses must be introductory and foundational. They must emphasize breadth, context, and connectedness; and relate course content to students’ future lives: See Preamble: http://www.umt.edu/facultysenate/gened/GEPreamble_final.htm

An introduction to visual language, concepts, and studio practicum. Focus on basic skills development in rendering volume, pictorial depth and figure/ground relationships. Research in historical and contemporary approaches to drawing.

IV. Criteria: Briefly explain how this course meets the criteria for the group. See: http://www.umt.edu/facultysenate/ASCRCx/Adocuments/GE_Criteria5-1-08.htm

Art 101 is designed for students to gain experience in creating expressive drawings and analyzing them through the process of critique.

V. Student Learning Goals: Briefly explain how this course will meet the applicable learning goals. See: http://www.umt.edu/facultysenate/ASCRCx/Adocuments/GE_Criteria5-1-08.htm

1. Student produce original drawings
2. Students study historical and contemporary approaches to drawing
3. Students critique their drawings and the drawings of their peers.

VII. Syllabus: Paste syllabus below or attach and send digital copy with form. The syllabus should clearly describe how the above criteria are satisfied. For assistance on syllabus preparation see: http://teaching.berkeley.edu/bgd/syllabus.html

Course Description: An introduction to visual language, concepts and studio practicum. Focus on basic skill development in rendering volume, pictorial depth, and figure/ground relationships. Research in historical and contemporary approaches to drawing.

Course Objectives and Format: As far as we can tell, human beings have always found it necessary to record and interpret events or beliefs by marking them down on a surface; by creating images that are capable of communicating an idea, belief, or fact about their life and environment; essentially drawing. Drawings possess an immediacy that most other media cannot due to the direct relationship that exists between the drawing tool, the artist and the surface drawn on. The attitude and act of drawing is one that increases our perceptive sensibilities and an awareness of our own thoughts. For this reason, drawing is a mode of thinking. During the semester we will approach drawing as both a means to communicate what is observed and thought as well as a complete contemporary fine art in and of itself that has its own idiosyncratic techniques and possibilities.

No prior drawing experience is assumed for this course.

Through a variety of drawing exercises, lectures, vocabulary quizzes, sketchbook assignments, group critiques and readings, the goal of this class is to:

1. Impart the fundamental skills of drawing and increase your observation skills. In other words, learn to translate three-dimensional form into a two-dimensional visual surface by exploring techniques of line, value, texture, space and formal composition.

2. Assist you in developing a vocabulary with which to analyze drawings, and constructively criticize your own work as well as that of your peers.

3. Begin to locate and develop personal expression and meaning in your work.

There are four main components to this course:
In-class drawing. The majority of our time will be spent drawing in class with one-on-one consultations.

Critiques are valuable to artists at all stages of their career. These discussions allow students to learn from each other and their instructor, evaluate themselves, and to utilize their growing visual vocabulary. I will guide these discussions and offer my feedback, but ultimately expect the class as a whole to speak more than myself in response to each other’s artwork. Your participation is essential to make these meaningful and engaging experiences.

Readings and periodic in-class lectures explain, illustrate and highlight important concepts and ideas. Although a different way of knowing than drawing, your engagement and comprehension will directly impact your drawing practice. Please attend in-class lectures and complete readings—we will have two quizzes based on this information throughout the term.

Homework is an opportunity to expand and deepen your exploration of the ideas introduced during class. Expect to spend 5 hours a week on outside assignments. Often we will critique your homework assignments on the Monday after their completion. It is therefore important to turn your assignments in on time. Once you have your assignment back, please place in a portfolio with other significant work you have created.

A sketchbook will be required for each student to record thoughts and ideas related and unrelated to class work.

Attendance: Success in drawing is almost entirely a function of effort. It is important to arrive on time, with all materials, and be ready to work. Usually at the beginning of each class I will discuss important concepts and issues that will guide the day’s assignment, and each assignment builds on previous work. It is therefore nearly impossible to make up missed class and it is essential that you are committed to arriving on time and attend every class. More than 3 missed classes or consistent lateness will result in a lowered grade. (For example, from B+ to B).

Two hours go by quickly in a studio so it is also important that you are set up and ready to go by 8:10am. Information about assignments is usually discussed at the beginning of the class and it is distracting to others to be setting up late. I know it is early, but if I can do it, so can you.

Grading and Assessment: Grades will reflect your attendance, completion of assignments, commitment to your work and understanding of new concepts. Of primary concern is the distance you move between the beginning and the end of class. I realize that each student comes with different levels of experience and your individual effort and development will factor into your grade. If you are present, engaged and working to understand new things, progress will come inevitably. I will give you feedback on each of your drawing assignments and conference with you at the end of the term.

70%. Timely completion and quality of assignments. Assignments should be completed and turned in on time. As each assignment build on the last, it is important to work consistently throughout the term. Understanding the assignment, and a sustained, concerted effort towards completion are essential for success and will be reflected in the quality of your work. While it is important to work through an assignment to completion, I also consider the degree to which a student is taking risks and experimenting with new ideas.

20%. Participation. Criteria include:
1. Participation in critiques and discussions
2. Engagement and diligently working in class
3. Studio etiquette (material clean-up, care for classroom and equipment)
4. Regular attendance in class and lecture.

Student Conduct Code: All students must practice academic honesty. Academic misconduct is subject to an academic penalty by the course instructor and/or disciplinary sanction by the University. All students need to be familiar with the Student Conduct Code. The Code is available for review online at www.umt.edu/SA/VPSA/Index.cfm/page/1321.

Disabling Condition: If you have a disabling condition that may interfere with your ability to successfully complete this course, please confer with the instructor.

Withdrawal Policy: Specifics available at this web address: http://www2.umt.edu/catalog/acpolpro.htm

Health and Safety: The UM Art Department uses environmentally sound methods. Required materials from your supply list are in compliance, with the exception of spray fixative. Spray fixative is not to be used in the building at any time. Please use fixative outdoors and sparingly. You are individually responsible for clean up at the end of each session in this classroom (either in or out of class time). No creatures or children will be allowed in the studios during class time or open studio times. No food or beverage containers will be allowed in the Art Department facilities when art-making is in progress. All art work must be picked up by the Monday after finals week or it will be discarded.

Building Access: The use of studio space requires current enrollment in a specific studio course, as course fees are used to purchase supplies. Those not currently enrolled will be asked to leave. Building hours are 7:00am to 11:00pm daily. Fridays are open studio day in the art building—no classes are scheduled.

Art Student Collective: The collective is a student–organized and student-led group that sponsors art-related workshops, events, and the Annual Juried Student Art Show. Members meet in FA 304 Mondays at 12:15pm. Everyone is invited to bring a sack lunch and join in!
