Reason for Gen Ed inclusion, change or deletion: Rolling review

Description of change: Updated syllabus

IV. Description and purpose of the general education course: General Education courses must be introductory and foundational within the offering department or within the General Education Group. They must emphasize breadth, context, and connectedness; and relate course content to students’ future lives: See Preamble: http://umt.edu/facultysenate/archives/minutes/gened/GE_preamble.aspx

Constitutional principles, structures, and the political processes of the national government.

V. Criteria: Briefly explain how this course meets the criteria for the group. See: http://umt.edu/facultysenate/documents/forms/GE_Criteria5-1-08.aspx
Criterion 1:
PSCI 210 systematically studies the roles and rights of the individual citizen and voter, of racial and other minorities, and of legal and illegal aliens under the American system of government. The course also inquires systematically into the roles and rights of interest groups and political parties in the American system of government. Thirdly, the course analyzes the roles and authority of the principal institutions of the American system of government – i.e., the national government and its legislative, executive, judicial, and administrative branches of government, and the state governments and their legislative, executive, judicial, and administrative branches of government.

Criterion 2.
PSCI 210 analyzes individuals, groups, and institutional structures relating to the American system of government from the perspective of both historical and contemporary problems. Such social problems include independence from England, slavery, radical states’ rights, industrialization and urbanization, national security and individual liberty, the civil rights movements, and regulating a national economy.

Criterion 3.
PSCI 210 is divided into four major areas: American political principles and values, democratic procedures that citizens use to express their views to government, the institutional parts of government that respond to citizen views and pressure, and the policies that contain the governmental responses. These policies – whether in the form of statutes, executive orders, judicial decisions, or administrative regulations – represent the conclusions and generalizations of government. PSCI 210 looks at the way policy is made, discovers the findings upon which policy is based, critiques past and existing policy, and inquires whether policy precedent should be followed or departed from as society changes.

VI. Student Learning Goals: Briefly explain how this course will meet the applicable learning goals. See: http://umt.edu/facultysenate/documents/forms/GE_Criteria5-1-08.aspx

Learning goal 1.
A student who has completed PSCI 210 is expected to be able to describe clearly and with some detail the evolution in the United States of individual and group political behavior, the major policy problems American government has confronted and attempted to resolve, the evolution of the nation's principal government institutions, the critical intra-national power relationships expressed in the term separation of powers, and the critical state-national power relationships expressed in the term federalism.

Learning goal 2.
A student who has completed PSCI 210 is expected to be able to discuss the various institutional and social phenomena studied from the perspectives of democratic theory, rule of law, individual dignity, pluralism, majoritarianism, counter-majoritarianism (minority rights), organizational theory, individual behavioral theory, and different voting/election theories.

Learning goal 3.
A student who has completed PSCI 210 is expected to be able to critique historical practices and reform preferences using findings of fact presented in the course. For example, discussion of how adequately political parties frame the choices of American voters should cite the conduct and results of past elections, and discussion of whether the Supreme Court has reinforced or harmed democracy should be based on past case decisions.

VII. Justification: Normally, general education courses will not carry pre-requisites, will carry at least 3 credits, and will be numbered at the 100-200 level. If the course has more than one pre-requisite, carries fewer than three credits, or is upper division (numbered above the 200 level), provide rationale for exception(s).

Course Description

This course is an introduction to American government and politics and is designed to provide a foundation for understanding and participating in the American political system. We will examine the theoretical ideas that informed the creation and development of America’s political system and consider some of the major contemporary challenges to the maintenance of American democracy.

Upon successful completion of this course, students should be able to: 1) understand the origins and nature of the constitutional system, federalism, and civil liberties; 2) appreciate the relationship between and the development of the legislative, executive, and judicial branches; 3) understand basic social science theories concerning political behavior, bureaucracies, interest groups, and political parties; 4) understand how social scientists explain and understand social and political processes; 5) write a thesis-based persuasive essay; 6) know the difference between a well-crafted argument substantiated with the effective use of evidence, and a poorly constructed argument based largely upon personal values and opinions.

Required Text and Other Readings

The following book is available at the University of Montana Campus Bookstore:

- James Morone and Rogan Kersh, By the People (Brief Version)

Other readings will consist of primary source documents and timely articles. The primary source documents are noted on the syllabus (in Weeks 2 and 3) and can be found in the appendixes of our book, By the People. With the exception of the Robert Putnam reading for Week 1, the timely articles don’t appear on the syllabus. These articles will be added throughout the semester as the instructors deem appropriate. These readings will be posted on the course’s Moodle website. Students will be notified when timely articles are added to the course. The instructors reserve the right to add, eliminate, or alter course readings.
Requirements and Grading

Weekly Writing Assignments: 15%
Exam 1 (Sept. 17): 15%
Exam 2 (Oct. 8): 15%
Exam 3 (Nov. 5): 15%
Paper (Nov. 19): 15%
Final Exam (Dec. 9): 25%

Weekly Writing Assignments: Each week students will complete a special (and short) assignment. Weekly assignments will typically be made available by Tuesday and will be due on Thursday. More information about weekly assignments will be provided in class.

Exams: Exams 1, 2 and 3 will be administered in class on Tuesday, September 17; Tuesday, October 8; and Tuesday, November 5. The Final Exam will be held from 10:10 – 12:10 on Monday, December 9. Exams will include a combination of multiple choice, identification, short answer, and essay questions. Makeup exams will only be permitted if Professor Saldin has been notified prior to the missed exam and only if he agrees that the absence was necessitated by a serious, documented emergency. Check your calendar now to make sure you do not have anything that conflicts with the exams.

Paper: Paper questions will be handed out in class and posted on the class’ Moodle site. Your task will be to answer one of the questions in 3 double-spaced pages with 1-inch margins and 12-point font. Hard copies of papers are due at the beginning of class on Tuesday, Nov. 19. Extensions will be available only in the case of emergency and then only with advance permission. Papers will be marked down half a letter grade (5%) for each day they are late.

Grades: Grades will be assigned according to the following percentages:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Grade</th>
<th>Percentage</th>

All four exams and the paper must be completed in order to pass the course.

Guest Speakers

Professor Saldin will make every effort to bring one or more guest speakers to our class. It is important for students to treat guests with respect. These sessions commonly include a question and answer period. It is essential that students use this opportunity to ask questions (dead silence needs to be avoided at all costs)! Hard questions are fine—even encouraged!—but need to be respectful.

Academic Honesty

All students must practice academic honesty. Academic misconduct is subject to an academic penalty by the course instructor and a disciplinary sanction by the University. All students need to be familiar with the Student Conduct Code. The Code is available online at http://life.umt.edu/vpsa/student_conduct.php. We take academic honesty very seriously, and will do our utmost to prevent, uncover, and penalize any form of cheating. Please contact Professor Saldin if you have any questions or concerns about academic honesty.
Social Sciences General Education Requirement

In order for this course to satisfy your General Education Distributional Requirement in the Social Sciences, you must take the course for a letter grade and earn a C– or better.

DSS Students

Qualified students with disabilities will receive appropriate accommodations in this course. Students with disabilities requesting accommodations on exams, papers, or other course requirements should contact Professor Saldin as soon as possible and must contact DSS in order to arrange for and provide Professor Saldin with a letter of approval for accommodations at least one week prior to the first exam scheduled for September 17). DSS is located in Lommasson Center 154.

weighted toward the material since Exam #3 (i.e., Weeks 11 – 15).

The instructors reserve the right to make adjustments to this class schedule as they deem necessary. If any changes are made, students will be notified (and reminded) with as much advance notice as possible.

Please note: Approved general education changes will take effect next fall.

General education instructors will be expected to provide sample assessment items and corresponding responses to the Assessment Advisory Committee.
