TIME TO GET OUT AND PLAY

Places to Go, Things to Do with Toddlers & Preschoolers in the Bitterroot Valley

Here We Go

Many years ago, when my kids were little, my response to a beautiful, sunny day was, “Let’s go on an adventure.” I’d toss food, drinks and extra clothes into a bag and off we’d go. When we had a string of miserable days, my response was, “Where can we go on an adventure so we don’t drive each other crazy?” And, by the way, since money was tight, I always looked for free or nearly free things to do.

Being new to the Bitterroot Valley, I was looking for some adventures to do with my grandson and when kids come to visit. There wasn’t any obvious list of things that would work with toddlers and preschoolers, so I thought it would be fun to put one together and share it with others.

My goal was to put a lot of information in one place with contact information so you could check it out more thoroughly yourself as things change. I make no claims to have included everything, that everything will work out or that all the information is totally accurate. We’re in Montana. One day there’s a great place to play by a stream and a week later the water is raging with the spring melt. Another day hungry mosquitoes are out in force. Programs, stores, people and resources come and go. Call first or go with the attitude that it’s an adventure and you may need to change your plans. I’ve also added tips to make the experience as successful as possible.

They say life is about the journey, not the destination. I can guarantee that the adventures you take with your toddlers and preschoolers will make your life journey more memorable and fun.

Enjoy!

1. Sing! Some kids are amazingly patient when they ride in the car. Some aren’t! Plan to sing songs or tell stories while you’re driving. CDs of children’s songs can be a saving grace. Sing along! It’s tempting to use videos and digital games which can keep little ones occupied, but you can provide a more interactive experience by being part of the entertainment!

2. Enjoy yourself! If you have a pre-walker, just slip on the carrier (or take the stroller) and enjoy the things that make you happy. Bring food and drinks that are easy and not messy. (Cheerios, cheese cubes and grapes were always my go-to snacks.)

3. Focus on the kids! Stay off the phone. It’s fun to go with a friend, but don’t get so invested in your adult conversation that you forget to pay attention to your kids. If you have a two-year-old, expect to interact every two minutes, a three-year-old—every 3 minutes—whether they ask for your attention or not! A simple touch, eye contact, smile and/or a statement about what the child is doing or seeing (positive statement, of course!) can keep your child engaged longer without demanding your attention.

4. Stay present and patient! If kids are engaged with something that holds their attention, like going up and down a ramp 100 times or watching a lawn mower going back and forth, that’s okay. We’re so prone to distract kids if something else is fascinating or you believe it has educational or entertainment value or you’re bored, but it’s okay for kids to do these things and stay focused on what they care about in the moment. Simply respect their choice of engagement and enjoy it for what it is. It will make your life easier.
5. Balance talking and quiet! While it’s important to talk to kids about what they are seeing and experiencing, don’t ask dozens of questions, explain everything or talk non-stop. Kids need to look, listen and explore on their own to take in new experiences.

6. Heed the warning! If your child gives you every indication that s/he wants to leave, listen to him/her. Most meltdowns could be avoided by heeding those warnings and not staying that extra five minutes.

7. Leaving ritual! If it’s time to leave and your child is engaged, tell him or her ahead of time that after s/he does X, you will both be leaving. Setting the timer on your phone is another good signal. Say what the routine will be. (When the phone beeps, we’ll put away the books, get your coat and you can put it on yourself or I can help you.) Then do it. You can include other choices and that’s a good idea, but there is no choice about it being time to go. And NEVER threaten to leave your child! It’s important that kids know that there is nothing they can do that would ever make you leave them, including throwing a full-blown tantrum! You can’t leave them for real, so you might as well build trust and don’t threaten—just take them kicking and screaming if need be.

8. Stick to your word! If you tell your child you are ready to leave, don’t start a conversation, get on your phone or get engaged with something else. Leave.

9. Review! On your ride or walk home, do a simple summary about what you did, what you saw and, if something was particularly interesting, describe it. Share it again at mealtime, later in the day and before going to bed. If you took pictures, look at them to reinforce the experience. It’s also teaching kids to tell stories!

10. Have realistic expectations. Really, don’t think your kids should be able to pay attention, behave and do what you want them to do more than this amount of time:

    - 2 years - 6 to 8 minutes
    - 3 years - 9 to 12 minutes
    - 4 years - 12 to 16 minutes
    - 5 years - 15 to 20 minutes
Believe it or not, even adults rarely stay on task more than 15-20 minutes unless we are personally invested in it! Usually our mind wanders, we doodle, talk, remember something important we must do, check our phone or otherwise distract ourselves. Unlike our kids, hopefully we don’t throw a temper tantrum, but we may get cranky! Because little kids can be mesmerized watching computer screens, TV, cell phones and tablets, we think they have a long attention span. Electronic media use all kinds of tricks with movement, color, sounds and timing to hook little kids (and adults!).

Don’t be fooled into thinking your kids should be able to do what you want them to do and stay actively engaged for extended periods of time. Be prepared to change activities, take a break or leave.

Maybe your child does stay engaged longer or has some days or activities where s/he can be incredibly interested and well-behaved for long periods of time, but don’t set that as your standard or come to expect it. Plus, if your child is tired, hasn’t been feeling well, or there’s been stress in the family, lower your expectations for how long s/he will stay focused and engaged. This simple shift in expectations is guaranteed to result in a more enjoyable time for everyone!

THINGS TO DO INSIDE

ANIMALS
Bitterroot Humane Society
Depending on your child, it might be a good place to pet cats and see dogs who are always happy to have some extra attention. Be aware, however, that it can be noisy in the dog area. If you’re interested in walking dogs or volunteering it could be a good experience for you, your child and the dogs!

ART EXPERIENCE
Paint Your Own Pottery at Stone Cottage
This is a fun place to walk around and shop for beautiful and unique things by local artists. Look for the framed butterflies and huge bugs! And best of all, there is a “Paint Your Own Pottery” studio upstairs. Customers can purchase and paint ceramic items any time Stone Cottage is open, Monday-Saturday, 10am-5:30pm. Prices are marked on the items, paints and brushes are on the tables and instructions are there too. Easy! No prep needed! Your kids will need supervision, but let’s not be concerned with doing it “right.” Have fun, be creative! Completed items will be fired and ready to be picked up within a week.

ART

Art is everywhere! Whether you’re in a doctor’s office, the bank or a store, it’s likely that you will see paintings, sculptures and other art forms. For information on local artists go to:

www.artistsalongthebitterroot.com

Studio tours are scheduled annually in June and November:

www.bitterrootarts.org/workshops

Helpful Hints to keep your child engaged when looking at art:

1. Pick your child up so s/he is at eye level with the art you’re looking at.

2. Pay attention to what your child likes and expand on it. If s/he is attracted to horses, focus on pictures of horses. You can talk about the color of the horses, theirs size, what they are doing, or where they are (in the middle of a field or inside a barn).

3. Have one thing in mind when you’re looking at paintings or photographs that will focus and engage children. Will you look for something yellow in each picture? Find things that are shaped like a circle? Find who looks happy or sad? Find fruit? See how many different animals you can see? What’s the weather? What are the people doing?

4. Keep toddlers captivated by asking them to point to things in the pictures. Can you find a chair? A man wearing a hat? Ask older preschoolers questions that make them observe and think: Is it morning or night? Is it winter or fall? Try rhyming with words you see in the pictures: what rhymes with snow? Sun? House? Bear?

5. Make up a story about a picture you’re looking at. Older preschoolers can tell you a story they make up about what you’re seeing. Don’t be afraid to make up silly stories.
Here are some art galleries to check out, but just walking around town, stop in any store that looks interesting and look at the art.

Art City
A cooperative art gallery with a wide variety of art: glass, pottery, batik, paintings, photography and more. Monday-Friday, 11am-5pm, Saturday, 11am-4pm.

MUSEUMS
Museums are great places to go and walk around, especially when you’re getting tired of being in the house during bad weather! Point out some specific items and talk about what you are seeing. Don’t overwhelm kids by trying to see everything. Take a break and give little ones a drink and a snack and review what you saw.

Bitterroot Gem and Mineral Society
What kid doesn’t like rocks? See their display that travels between the Stevensville Historical Museum and the Victor Heritage Museum. Contact them for display location, kid-friendly activities and family-friendly rockhounding day trips. The annual Gem and Mineral Show is at the Fairgrounds the 3rd weekend in May and kids’ activities are provided.

Daly Mansion and Gardens
Open mid-May through mid-October, 10am-3pm. This mansion has 50 rooms to walk through, lots of art and a beautiful garden on 46 acres. You can take a tour or just walk through on your own which is probably best with a young child. There is a minimal fee but kids under 6 are free. Check online for events held there that are appropriate for kids.

Lee Metcalf Wildlife Refuge Visitor Center
Open Monday-Friday, 8am-4:30pm. The Visitor’s Center is worth a visit. There are great displays of birds and other animals. Outside, live birds are everywhere—in the trees and bushes, on the ponds and flying through the air! We even saw a porcupine sleeping in a tree! And, if the weather is nice, go for a walk in the refuge.

VISIT STORES

It can be fun to go into stores to see new things and talk about what you see. Just going to a different type of store once in a while could be quite an adventure.

Helpful hints for making a store visit an adventure:

1. Before going into a store, tell your child what you will be doing, seeing, buying or looking at. It helps them focus. Tell them whether or not you will buy them something. There is no reason for kids to think they should get something every time they are in a store.

2. If you’re in a store that is really crowded with stuff and has things hanging everywhere, be super careful if you have a little one in a backpack. Antique stores and thrift stores quickly come to mind. If something is shiny and interesting, their reach can be surprising! Note that this kind of store may not be the best place to be spending time in unless you have to get something.

3. Preschoolers are prone to touching things, so try this little trick. Tell them before you go into a store and then once you enter it that you know they will be very well-behaved and won’t touch things, but their thumb may cause a problem. Tell them to hold their thumb with their other hand so it behaves well too! This may sound dumb, but it works! Minimize visits to stores where kids need to be watched every moment for their own safety or so things don’t get accidentally broken. Keep these visits as short as possible.

4. Remember, these are adventures. There is no reason to buy something every time you’re in a store. If you do buy something, try giving him/her a choice of two things that you pick out. That way you get to control the price and your child starts getting used to making choices about what to buy. Preschoolers can be given money to start understanding what they can buy for the money they have and how to make choices and live with the consequences.
5. Even going to the supermarket can be an adventure. Include your little ones in decision making. Hold up two boxes of cereal or two cans of tomato sauce where either one is okay with you or ask him/her to choose one. Older preschoolers can “help” get items off the shelf and find items you tell them to look for.

6. Tantrums? Wild, inappropriate behavior? Pick your child up kicking and screaming and leave. Go to the car, give him/her something to drink/eat and if you have to go back in the store after things calm down, do it. Otherwise just leave.

Don’t give warnings (i.e., if you do that again, we’re going to leave)! If they do something inappropriate tell them the right thing to do. No threats. If they do it again, just leave. When you threaten, you’re setting them up to do it again to test you.

Stay an adult. Spanking, yelling and threatening won’t teach them what you want them to do. Your child is simply telling you something isn’t working for him/her, it’s time to go or seeing if you are paying attention. (Be honest, were you on your phone and not paying any attention to your child? Did your kid need a hug and you were too busy to stop for a second?) Sometimes your kid is just tired, hungry, thirsty or not feeling great. Offer a drink or something to eat before s/he asks or has a meltdown. And remember you once threw temper tantrums, and this too shall pass.
A FEW GREAT STORES TO VISIT

Chapter One Bookstore
Great children’s selection of books and a fun place with toys to play with. Check when they have story hour for kids and other events. Going to buy a book is a wonderful treat!

252 W. Main Street, Hamilton
www.chapter1bookstore.com
(406) 363-5220

Grandfather’s Clocks
Cuckoo clocks, grandfather clocks and more clocks! Most are about 100 years old and come from different countries. And if you happen to have a clock that needs to be repaired, this is the place to bring it! Although it’s not a place for kids to run around, it really is fascinating to look at the clocks, point out different types and make up stories about the family that used to own the clock.

755 Main Street, Stevensville
(406) 239-1478

MT Mainstreet Toys
Toys, puzzles and games for kids of all ages. Their slogan: Come in and play around! You can’t beat that invitation!

www.mainstreettoysmt.com
(406) 375-5155

Murdoch’s Ranch & Home Supply
Pick one part of the store and talk about what you’re seeing. Things for horses. Safes. Pet supplies. Ropes. It’s a pretty fascinating place for little kids if you think of it as a 15-to 30-minute adventure and not a store.

1189 S. 1st Street, Hamilton
www.murdochs.com
(406) 363-7644

Old West Candy & Antiques Gallery
This eclectic store has many rooms and lots of interesting antiques, art, gifts and even fun, unique toys for kids.

202 S. Main Street, Darby
(406) 821-4076
oldwestcandy.com
Rooted Music Store
Instruments for toddlers and young players. Besides introducing them to recognize different instrument, if you get a triangle, horn, shaker or other easy instrument, it can be an easy distraction on long car rides. Announce that it is NOISY TIME, put music on or sing and everyone be as loud as possible using the instruments/noise makers. Five minutes is all it takes to break up the ride and have some fun.

THINGS TO DO OUTSIDE

There are so many places to go in the valley to play with water. Rivers, streams, pools, ponds and creeks can provide endless fun. If the weather and water are warm enough, splashing, floating and swimming in the water can’t be beat. Sometimes, dressing warm and wearing rubber boots can still work for splashing in small, shallow pools of water even when it’s not warm. There are fun things to do by the water even if it’s too cold, deep or dangerous to go in.

Helpful hints for water fun:

1. Throw stones or sticks into the water or bring a bucket to collect stones, leaves or feathers.

2. Float leaves in the water.

3. Put a string on a boat and let it float.

4. Use a small fishing pole or stick with a string attached. For toddlers, put a plastic fish or rubber worm on the end. They’ll love just putting in the water and pulling it out. If they can’t be by the water, just doing it in a bucket works. Preschoolers can fish with supervision.

5. Bring pails or other plastic containers, measuring cups and spoons or any plastic cups, scoops and spoons for pouring from one thing to another. Fill a bucket with water, sand, rocks or dirt and let the pouring begin. Scooping up rocks and sand also works.

6. Bring clean, empty bottles from shampoo, lotion, detergent, etc., with different types of tops. Fill with water and then let the kids pour, spray or squirt to their hearts content. Spraying rocks with water is always fun because the rocks change color when they get wet.

7. Bring a colander, strainer, net (butterfly or fish net), plastic container or bottle with holes punched in it and watch the water pour through it. See what happens if there are stones or sand in the water.
RIVER ACCESS
Stop by the Forest Service Office or go to their website to find all the different access points. Some have trails that are easy to walk on with little kids. Sometimes the river is right by the parking lot and other times it is a fun little hike.

HIKING, STROLLING AND JOGGING

Put your little one in a pack or take the stroller and simply go for a walk. Look at interesting houses, historic buildings and new sights—a great way to get out and enjoy the day. Once kids are mobile, plan to let them wander and stop to look at things that are interesting to them. Watching someone mowing the lawn, washing windows or unloading a truck can be the highlight of your child’s walk! Make it an adventure for preschoolers by giving them a backpack, a map or something to look forward to seeing or doing—even if it’s just counting how many dogs they see along the way. Montana State Extension has great walking maps (and often offer incentive programs with gifts to get you walking).

Darby Hiking Trail, Darby
Information is found at Darby Historical Visitors Center at the Forest Service office. Pick up trail information and Smokey Bear rulers and coloring books. This is a 3.5-mile loop that follows the roads, winds down by the river and up to the school, skatepark and rodeo grounds.

Lake Como, Darby
Hiking trail is paved for the first half mile, so easy access for strollers. Go past the beach to the highest parking area in order to access this paved path. When the weather is nice, the lake is great for playing on the beach or in the water and there’s lots of hiking. Before you get to the lake, on the right is a small parking area. Walk up the little hill and there is a long, flat hiking/biking path along the canal. Turn west on Lake Como rd.

Lee Metcalf National Wildlife Refuge
This is a great destination any time of the year. The trails go by ponds, streams, lakes and wetlands, so there are lots of waterfowl to see. At the Visitor’s Center (open Monday-Friday, 8am-4:30pm) there are displays of local wildlife, pictures, videos and more. You can borrow binoculars and look for waterfowl and other wildlife on the ponds next to the visitor center. If you want to get better at finding and pointing out birds to your child, watch for their beginning bird-watching classes where you can walk along with an expert and use their high-powered spotting scopes. You can also look up the Bitterroot Audubon Society on Facebook for another way to learn about birds to make walks with your kids more interesting.

Centennial Grove (off Skalkaho Rd.) (.3 mile)
An accessible interpretive trail meanders through a wide range of plant and tree species along the banks of Skalkaho Creek. During your walk you can learn about these different species through interpretive plaques strategically placed along the trail or just simply relax on benches placed on the route.
Directions: From Hamilton travel two miles south on Highway 93. Turn east (left) on Skalkaho Highway 38. Follow Skalkaho Highway 38 approximately 12 miles. There is a pull-out with an information board located on the south (right) side of the road.

Nature Trail #391 (.5 mile) up Bass Creek Rd.
South of Stevensville off Hwy. 93
Near the Charles Waters Campground in the Bass Creek area, it begins at Road #1316 and ends at Trail 391 (Loop).
Directions: Take Highway 93, five miles north of Stevensville and turn left onto Bass Creek Road # 2200. Continue two miles to Charles Waters Campground. Turn right on Road #1316. Travel approximately 3/10 mile to the parking area.
Willoughby 40 Environmental Trail (1 mile)
South of Stevensville, East on Pine Hollow Rd.
This is a unique interpretive nature trail that travels through multiple habitats and is self-guided utilizing a 12-site interpretive brochure. The area contains a variety of habitats, including dry sagebrush, ponderosa pine forest, and a riparian area. Directions: From Stevensville go south on Eastside Highway for 1.7 miles. Turn east (left) at Pine Hollow Rd and follow for one mile, then turn right to remain on Pine Hollow and follow another 3.4 miles. Turn east (left) onto S. Sunset Bench Rd and follow for two miles. Site will be on the south (right) side of the road.

ROCKS AND MORE
The Gem and Mineral Society is a great source of information if you’re looking for a fun, rock-related experience while you’re in other parts of the State. Try Crystal Park (Dillon) where you can dig for crystals and enjoy the recreation area. Look for cranberry-colored garnets at Ruby Reservoir above Ruby Dam near Virginia City and hike in highly decorated limestone caverns at Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park in Whitehall. You can only access the cave May 1-September 30.

Sapphire Gallery
Right in the center of Philipsburg, this interesting store sets up tables with “wash” so you can mine for sapphires, amethysts, garnets and citrine year-round. $25/bucket. Walking around Philipsburg is also fun. Note that the famous candy store is not open on Saturdays.

AIRPORTS

Airports are a lot of fun for little kids and some become absolutely obsessed with watching the planes. They love to look at them sitting on the tarmac and at our small airports, you can often walk around and see the planes up close. There is a bench right outside the office at the Ravalli County Airport. If any planes are taking off and landing, you can just sit and enjoy watching them. If you’re lucky, someone will be taking a flying lesson and will do multiple takeoffs and landings! Keep your eyes open for helicopters. During fire season we’ve seen fire-fighting helicopters parked there. Or you may see the fuel truck come out and put fuel in a plane. People there are friendly. Don’t be surprised if people offer to let your child sit in the cockpit of their planes!

Living in the Bitterroot Valley we mostly see small planes, helicopters transporting people to the hospital and helicopters that are used to fight forest fires. There are lots of appropriate books about planes and other things that fly (like hot air balloons) for young kids. If your child is really interested in planes, you may want to buy a book at our local bookstore, check out a book from the library or go on the Internet and learn more about different types of aircraft their parts. It’s great to come home and engage in dramatic play with planes. Build an airport with blocks, talk about places you can go, what you will see, what you need to take with you. Get a bag, backpack or suitcase and pretend to pack for a trip.

ANIMALS
There is no shortage of animals in the valley! Driving on Eastside Highway or any of the back roads around Hamilton and throughout Ravalli County it is common to see horses, sheep, cows, llamas, alpacas, turkeys, mules, donkeys, chickens, ducks, dogs, cats, goats, rabbits and deer, plus lots of birds. Sometimes you may spot a moose or elk and the unlikely bear may show up. It is fun to stop, pull over (in a safe spot!) and just watch the animals in the fields. In the spring there are lots of babies so it’s a great time to take a ride or walk and see calves, lambs, foals, fawns, goslings and more. Here are places to go to see animals outside.

Kratofil Duck Pond
The Kratofil family built this duck pond for the community more than 50 years ago. It is a wonderful place to go and watch the ducks, geese and other migrating birds, as well as see the good-sized trout swimming in the pond. Bring quarters to buy food to feed the ducks and fish. Directions: Take First Street (Hwy 93) south from Main Street to Golf Course Road. Turn left for about a mile. Immediately past Upper Skyway Drive on your right, watch for the pond on the left side of the road. It’s small and easy to miss.

Hamilton Dog Park
It may be best to stay outside the fence to watch the dogs running and playing here in order to avoid getting bumped or hurt. There are benches in the middle and on the sides to sit and watch as well. Never let your child get close to a group of dogs or pet a dog without asking the owner first. S/he could get pushed around if the dogs are playing and hurt if one gets aggressive. If there are dogs there, it’s fun to just watch them play or chase a ball.

Homestead Organics Farm
Come see peacocks, pot-bellied pigs, goats and more! See chickens and collect eggs. Call before you come the first time to be shown around and then just drop by to say hi to the animals when it works for you. Check out the Farm Stand Tuesdays, 2-6 from May through October for your fresh produce. See their Website for camps and other events. More information on page 36.

Construction Sites

Bitterroot Valley is growing! Nearly everywhere you look there is a construction site or roadwork. Many children are fascinated and will watch the big construction equipment at work for a long time. Something is always in motion: cement mixers, diggers, cranes, jack hammers, dump trucks and excavators. Look for books ranging from simple pictures to ones that identify the parts of the equipment in more detail to story books. It’s another reason to go to the library, Chapter One Bookstore or the thrift stores to find books. There are also lots of videos online about construction but going to see it in person is so much more exciting, and it’s a memorable outdoor adventure! Go for a walk or just pull over, get out of the car and watch from a safe distance!
FARMS

Homestead Organics
This is a great place to go with kids to get your produce. Veggies are so much more interesting when you see where they come from and they can see the animals too, including a peacock which is quite a draw! Farm Stand Tuesday, 2pm-6pm and self-serve eggs all day, every day. They are part of the Loyal to Local Community Agricultural Cooperative. Guided tours are available on Tuesdays during the summer months or call to see the farm and learn more. Check their website for their kids’ farm camp, special programs for kindergartners, a parent-child volunteer program and other fun, family-friendly events.

K-T Farms
Come out and walk the fields and pick your own veggies. Depending on what’s growing, you can gather strawberries, pull carrots, pick zucchini, dig for potatoes and more! The owners are there to give you information and help you do what needs to be done. You and your child can also just watch the activities and buy produce at the farm stand. They are also part of the CSA project. Ask about kid-friendly projects they may be doing like a pick-and-carve your own pumpkin or participate in a kids’ garden from planting to harvesting. Parents Night Out!

Sometimes the best thing you can do for your children is take some time for yourself! Here are some resources to help. If you have a regular babysitting job you can post, contact local high schools, churches and the Bitterroot College and ask if they can direct you to students looking to babysit. Of course, if you can coordinate care with your friends—even better. (Marcus Daly Hospital offers a babysitting course for teens. Although they are not a referral source, if you know a teen who’s interested in watching your kids, you may recommend it.) Here are some other options in the community.

FUN CHILDCARE OPTIONS
