NIH Public Access Policy

All NIH-funded research, by federal law, must meet the NIH public access policy when accepted for publication in a journal. The NIH public access policy requires that peer-reviewed articles it funds be publicly available on PubMed Central (PMC) utilizing one of the submission methods below, depending on which method is most appropriate for them:

Submission Method A: Some Journals automatically post NIH supported papers directly to PMC.

Please see Method A Best Practices:

<https://publicaccess.nih.gov/method-A-BP>

Submission Method B: The author chooses to arrange with the journal for the deposit of a specific article, typically involving a fee-based open access option.

Please see Method B Best Practices:

<https://publicaccess.nih.gov/Method-B-BP>

Submission Method C: The author or a delegate deposits the final peer-reviewed manuscript into the NIH Manuscript Submission system (NIHMS).

Submission Method D: The publisher deposits the final peer-reviewed manuscript into the NIHMS.

Please see Methods C and D Best Practices:
