Bloedel Timberlands has an opening for a seasonal, qualified forest technician to help manage its forests in the North Cascades and the Olympic Peninsula of Washington State. Our 23,000 acre tree farm is located in Whatcom, Skagit, and Clallam counties. The successful applicant will be required to work out of Bellingham, Washington. This job is a unique opportunity for a forester to work in the coastal Pacific Northwest.

Primary Duties

- Provide support with aspects of the company’s forest inventory program including timber cruising and regeneration surveys.
- Assist with timber sale layout, stream type identification, and other projects as needed.
- Hike in remote mountainous regions using maps, compass, and GPS.
- Work independently in remote mountainous regions in all weather conditions.

Qualifications

- A minimum of one year in a Forest Management program.
- Effectively work and interact within a team setting.
- Excellent communication skills, self-motivation, organizational skills, and a strong work ethic.
- Prior experience in, or the ability to develop such skills as: tree identification, use of a relaskop, map reading, pacing, and the Fulcrum data collection app.
- The ability and the willingness to travel for work.
- Have or obtain a valid state issued driver’s license, and the ability to drive hazardous mountain roads.
- A dependable vehicle to get yourself to and from the job site.

Job Details

- Wage: Competitive compensation, dependent on experience and qualifications.
- Living Expenses: Living quarters will be provided at our seed orchard in Bellingham, WA. Alternatively, a small monthly stipend can be provided for other living arrangements.
- Personal Vehicle Compensation: A mileage rate will be paid to cover the costs of fuel and maintenance from work-related use. Travel time will be paid, one way, for your travel to the job site.
