Funded Opportunities to Partner with Faculty from Another Country

The University of Montana Virtual Exchange (UMOVE)/COIL Initiative

Wednesday, February 2, 12-1 p.m. via Zoom

Learn how the University of Montana Virtual Exchange (UMOVE)/COIL methodology connects part or all of your course with a class in another country for intercultural applied learning. In this workshop, faculty will learn how to identify an existing course they teach as a good candidate for UMOVE/COIL, learn how to find potential global partners, examine a successful UMOVE/COIL program and discuss lessons learned, and learn how to apply for UMOVE/COIL funding and support. Join Professor Alessia Carpoca (Theatre & Dance), Jeanie Castillo (UMOnline), Marja Unkuri-Chaudhry and Donna Anderson (Global Engagement Office) to learn how to bring international exposure to courses taught at UM. Please send any specific questions you have in advance to Donna Anderson at donna.anderson@mso.umt.edu

The UGP Global Research Incentive Program awards grants of up to $5,000
International partnerships are essential to comprehensive research and creative scholarship. Transformational global partnerships usually begin with short specific projects aimed at generating longer-term collaborations able to sustain regular interactions and further develop common interests. Therefore, the purpose of the Global Research Incentive Program (GRIP) is to promote and foster comprehensive internationalization of the University of Montana through incentivizing international research collaborations through UM’s existing global partnerships.

Minamata High School Continues Virtual Programming at ELI

By Sara Schroeder (Director of the English Language Institute)
In 2022 Montana will celebrate 40 years of sisterhood with Kumamoto Prefecture in Japan. Since 1982, Montana and Kumamoto have made many business, governmental, and educational connections. The English Language Institute (ELI) has been fortunate to be included in these exchanges. ELI has connected with Minamata High School in Kumamoto Prefecture to provide English courses centered on environmentalism and sustainable development. Beginning in 2020, programming shifted from in-person to virtual instruction and exchange. The change in course delivery has allowed this special program to expand from a two-week course to one that spans several months. More time between class sessions gives Minamata students more time to conduct research, complete coursework, and connect with conversation partners.

GEO Open Houses

The Global Engagement Office is excited to announce our entire team it now housed in the International Center on campus and no longer split between the International Center and Lommasson Center. The centralized location of the GEO team allows us to move toward becoming a central hub for all things international at UM and better serve the campus and community. To celebrate our newly united space in the International Center, we are planning Open Houses for students, faculty and staff later this spring, possibly to coincide with WorldFest in April. Please watch for an invitation later this semester.

In the meantime, the GEO team is happy to meet virtually or in person with members of the campus community who would like to learn more about what we do and the programming and services we provide, such as:

- Develop a virtual exchange for one of your courses
- Invite an international scholar to teach or research in your department
- Learn how to lead a program abroad
- Discover ways to better support international students in the classroom

For more information, please contact Donna Anderson, Senior International Officer, at donna.anderson@mso.umt.edu

Featured Partner University:

AlAkh University
Al Akhawayn University Ifrane, AUI for short, opened in 1995 in Ifrane, Morocco. Although AUI is modeled in its organizational structure, curriculum, method, and language of instruction on the American system of higher education, there is a strong African, Arab, and Islamic influence. Undergraduate courses include, Business Administration, Communication Studies, Human Resource Development, International Studies, Science Engineering, & General Engineering.

AUI has a number of graduate programs as well. Around 2,000 students attend the school, with 160 international students from 28 different countries. Ifrane is one hour from the cities of Fez and Meknes, two and a half hours from the Moroccan capital, Rabat, and three and a half hours from Casablanca. Although you can travel out of the city of Ifrane, there are many opportunities right in town! Residents and visitors enjoy four seasons of the beautiful Middle Atlas mountains region which provide opportunities to see wildlife and waterfalls, take hikes, go horseback riding, skiing, fishing and much more. You also don’t want to miss the rich city history, bazaars, hammams, markets, restaurants, and nightlife. There’s a reason the city of Ifrane keeps growing!

Intrigued? Get connected. Enjoy the beauty.
