English Language Institute Student Performs With the Missoula Community Band!

By: Ashley Wilson

Hiroka Umeda is from Osaka, the second-largest city in Japan, with a booming population of approximately 2.7 million people. Currently, Hiroka is attending the University of Montana, which I can only assume, must have been quite the culture shock. Despite just her busy school schedule, Hiroka is a member of the Missoula Community Band. Hiroka, or otherwise known by her nickname, Ume, is a talented French horn, piano and trumpet player. Although Ume is not currently in Japan, her passion for music and her longing to perform live did not stop.

The Missoula Community Band consists of many dedicated people including, as Ume recalls, one member over 80 years old! Ume told me that being a band member is both a great opportunity to meet new people and to answer various fun questions about Japanese culture. However, this experience has not been without some challenges. Not only is reading the music different than what she is used to, Ume has also had to adjust to playing an instrument that is not her own.

Overall, I am inspired by Ume's dedication to music. Our interview concluded with a discussion about the powerful connection between music and culture. We both agreed that music has the power to bring people together, whether they are young or old, from a small town in the United States of America or a city like Osaka, Japan. In our time together, we discovered that we had similar music tastes and a shared admiration for Harry Styles. In short, Ume is a dedicated University of Montana student who has taken advantage of one of the many great opportunities that Missoula has to offer!

THE AMERICAN COLLEGE OF GREECE

Athens, Greece

Featured Partner University with the University of Montana:

The American College of Greece

By: Ashley Wilson

Greece is an ideal and picturesque destination for travelers everywhere with its historical charm, delicious food, and impressive architecture. The city of Athens, located in central Greece, is known as the birthplace of Western Civilization. Athens is also home to the Acropolis, an ancient city and a popular tourist destination that beautifully captures Greece's rustic appeal. If this is not enough to make you want to book a plane ticket right now, Athens also contains the most theatrical stages in the world and an exquisite culinary experience.

However, did you know that there is a university located in Athens that does not require you to know a second language? The American College of Greece is the oldest American sponsored college in Europe and it offers its students a wide variety of majors, a library, Olympic quality athletic facilities, and nearby housing. To attend this university, students must earn at least a 2.8 GPA, otherwise, all of the classes are instructed in English. Therefore, when an opportunity to study abroad knocks on your door, a language requirement should not have to stand in the way.

Majors Offered:

Accounting, Anthropology, Art, Art History and Criticism, Art Studio, Biology, Business Administration, Chemistry, Chinese, Classical Civilization, Classics, Communication Studies, Computer Applications, Dance, Economics, English, Environmental Studies, Finance, French, Geosciences, German, Greek, History, International Business, Management, Management Information Systems, Marketing, Media Arts, Music, Philosophy, Physics, Political Science, Political Science - History, Psychology, Russian, Russian Studies, Sociology, Theatre
