FUN FACTS:

French people don't refrigerate their milk or eggs, and a lot of people (adults included!) ride push-scooters to work and school everyday!

ABOUT LYON:

Even though it's not the most famous French town, Lyon has a really rich cultural history. It used to be the capital of the Gallic Roman Empire, and two Roman emperors were born here. It is often called the gastronomic capital of the world, and it has countless Lyonnaise dishes and at least 20 Michelin-starred restaurants. The brothers who invented cinema are from here, as is the man who wrote Le Petit Prince. We also have a world-famous celebration every year, called the Fête des Lumières, in which all of the main buildings of town are lit up with thousands of lights and light shows. I could go on and on!
