Montana Breweries were started by people who learned to brew beer in their own homes. Many Montana Breweries were started by people who learned to brew beer in their own homes.

Missoula hosts more than six annual brew fests. Big Sky Brewing is the largest distributor in the state. They are the makers of the popular Moose Drool Beer.

Bayern Brewing is the oldest brewery still in operation in the State of Montana.

There are currently over 90 licensed breweries in the state of Montana.

Montana Craft Beer is sold in 24 states and in 5,000 retail locations.

Missoula and its breweries have made it on many “best beer” lists over the years including “Best Small Beer Cities” and “Best Beer Cities in America.”

Montana is actually No. 3 in the nation for the number of breweries per capita. In 2020, Montana is ranked No. 3 in the nation for the number of breweries per capita.

Over half of the malted grain used in the production of the craft beer in the state is actually grown in Montana. We also provide grains for some of the most successful beer companies in the U.S. including Coors and Miller.
