MESSAGE FROM THE COMMISSIONER

Dear UM Graduates,

It is with great pleasure that I congratulate you, the Spring 2026 graduates of the University of Montana, on this incredible accomplishment. As a fellow graduate of this great institution, I know that completing your academic coursework required steadfast dedication and determination. When you cross the stage today, know that the faculty and staff of the University of Montana and I join your family and loved ones in celebrating this milestone.

As the Commissioner of Higher Education for the Montana University System, I have witnessed firsthand the positive impacts of higher education. With the degree you are earning today, I know you are poised for success in this next chapter, and the chapters yet to come. We look forward to hearing about your accomplishments and the impact you will each have as professionals and people.

While this academic journey is now complete, your tenure as UM alumni is just beginning. We look forward to welcoming you back to campus often.

Sincerely,

Joe Whittinghill

HONORARY DOCTORATE RECIPIENT OF BUSINESS AND COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Joe Whittinghill turned a University of Montana education into a global leadership journey and has never stopped giving back to UM. After earning his degree in political science from UM and a master’s degree from Pepperdine, Joe built an extraordinary career at Microsoft, spending more than 25 years shaping strategy, growing the company, leading major transformations, and working at the intersection of business and people.

Joe most recently served as Corporate Vice President and Chief Talent and Learning Officer, setting strategy, defining culture, leadership, and learning for one of the world’s largest and most influential companies. Earlier in his career, Joe played a key role in Microsoft’s growth through mergers and acquisitions, including landmark deals like Minecraft and LinkedIn that reshaped the tech industry and brought tens of thousands of people into the company across the globe. He currently is a board member for D.A. Davidson, Gaia Ag, and Grizzly Riders International and continues to teach for universities.

Despite his global role, Joe’s connection to Montana has always been a constant. A proud Grizzly, he has served the University of Montana as a teacher, mentor, foundation board chair, alumni board chair, and philanthropic leader. In 2025, he received the Neil S. Bucklew Presidential Service Award in recognition of his lasting impact. “The University of Montana didn’t just prepare me for my career - it taught me how to keep learning, how to lead, and how to give back. My hope for today’s graduates is that you carry these same lessons forward, wherever your path takes you.

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 13.5 million (19.5% of the population).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people in the UK. The Department of Health (1998) has published a strategy for older people, which sets out a number of key objectives for the government. One of these is to ensure that older people have access to the services and support they need to live independently and actively in their own homes.

One of the ways in which this can be achieved is by providing older people with access to a range of services and support, such as home care, day care, and residential care. However, it is important to ensure that these services are tailored to the needs of older people and that they are delivered in a way that is respectful of their dignity and autonomy.

One of the challenges of providing services to older people is that they often have complex needs. For example, they may have physical, mental, and social needs. It is therefore important to take a holistic approach to their care, which takes account of all of these needs and ensures that they are met in a coordinated and integrated way.

Another challenge is that older people often live in isolation and may not have a strong support network. This can make it difficult for them to access services and support. It is therefore important to provide older people with opportunities to socialize and to participate in activities that interest them.

Finally, it is important to ensure that older people have access to information and advice about the services and support available to them. This can be done through a range of channels, such as the internet, telephone helplines, and face-to-face advice services.
